“How to Master IBM ViaVoice 4th Edition”

You can improve your personal productivity by talking to your computer

By James P. Cox

IBM ViaVoice is not difficult software, but it is different than any other software most users may have experienced. As a result of these differences, a great many users never master speech recognition and the software just sits there on the shelf. Professional training can overcome this, but it is expensive and there are very few Good Professional ViaVoice Trainers in the United States.

The author is an IBM Certified Solutions Expert in Speech Recognition using ViaVoice and an IBM Premier Speech Business Partner. Mr. Cox has provided “End User Training” and “Train the Trainers” classes on ViaVoice to hundreds of students all over the U.S. and in his own office.

Mr. Cox began in speech recognition with version 1.0 of IBM VoiceType Dictation, the predecessor to ViaVoice, in 1995. Under contract to IBM, he trained many of IBM’s speech dealers. He also served as one of two United States members on the world wide committee that wrote the ViaVoice Certification Exam for IBM Business Partners.

“About How to Master IBM ViaVoice 4th Edition”

This book cannot replace the professional training that Mr. Cox provides (at a fee of $1,250.00 per day plus expenses), but may be the next best thing. “How to Master IBM ViaVoice” consists of 466 8-1/2x11 pages containing more than 320 Color Photos and Illustrations. Mr. Cox stated “I wrote this book to tell you what I would have said to you, if I were present and looking over your shoulder”. The book covers IBM ViaVoice for Windows release 10 (& rev B), Pro USB Edition.

Who This Book is For”

This was written for Physicians, Attorneys, Business Executives, Educators and other Professionals who want to increase their personal productivity by talking to their computer. Many handicapped or disabled individuals will also find the information very useful.
